we need to swallow our moral indignation and focus on helping those in need.

in other countries, using or carrying mind-altering, non-prescription drugs can pose huge risks—not just to our overall health but also legally and culturally.

 patients who have had scarlet fever develop immunity to the disease and cannot be infected again.